One-to-one training

This training allows participants to individually determine the contents of their course by selecting from various topics. Please note however, some topics are based upon others. Possibly, these have to be discussed beforehand in order to guarantee that the user really understands the chosen feature. For example, before a different numbering format can be chosen, one should know how to insert numberings.

For whom is this course useful?

CEOs and managers, who require training that is individual, tailored to their needs, with time saving advantages.

Your benefit

- You have the opportunity to address specific topics which are of interest to you and cover your needs.
- You do not have to participate in standard classes anymore and wait until “your” topic is discussed; instead, you receive training that meets your specific interests.
- Thanks to the time you save with this course, you advance more quickly and have a higher learning success.
